

Featured Farmer of the Week

Who: Lucy and Juan Valadez, their children, Mariah, Buddy, Katalina, Jozef and Mayte, and their extended family

What Farm: Valadez Organic Produce

From: Myrtle Creek, Oregon

Where: Umpqua Valley Farmers' Market, Canyonville Farmers' Market, Valadez Organic Produce Pickup/Delivery, wholesale through local grocery stores and suppliers, and a summer CSA program

About the Farmers: Valadez Organic Produce began in 2015 in Myrtle Creek, Oregon. They are organic as well as GAP (good agricultural practice) certified, and grow a variety of crops including zucchini, tomatoes, berries, cherries, bok choy, lettuces, onions, spinach, cucumbers, kale and more. Their CSA program runs throughout the summer, so check in for a spot! Valadez Organic Produce is a family affair, with all five children as well as extended family helping out on the farm. They are at the market every weekend, all year.

This material was funded in part by USDA's Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program - SNAP. USDA is an equal opportunity provider and employer. Oregon State University, Oregon State University Extension Service is an Equal Opportunity Provider and Employer.

Figs

August 8, 2020

Featured Farmer of the Week

Who: Lucy and Juan Valadez, their children, Mariah, Buddy, Katalina, Jozef and Mayte, and their extended family

What Farm: Valadez Organic Produce

From: Myrtle Creek, Oregon

Where: Umpqua Valley Farmers' Market, Canyonville Farmers' Market, Valadez Organic Produce Pickup/Delivery, wholesale through local grocery stores and suppliers, and a summer CSA program

About the Farmers: Valadez Organic Produce began in 2015 in Myrtle Creek, Oregon. They are organic as well as GAP (good agricultural practice) certified, and grow a variety of crops including zucchini, tomatoes, berries, cherries, bok choy, lettuces, onions, spinach, cucumbers, kale and more. Their CSA program runs throughout the summer, so check in for a spot! Valadez Organic Produce is a family affair, with all five children as well as extended family helping out on the farm. They are at the market every weekend, all year.

This material was funded in part by USDA's Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program - SNAP. USDA is an equal opportunity provider and employer. Oregon State University, Oregon State University Extension Service is an Equal Opportunity Provider and Employer.

Figs

August 8, 2020

